Vol. 112 No. 100 Cameron, Milam County, Texas, Monday February 28, 1972

Now With F.M.L.

Rep. Dan Kubiak, of Rockdale, late Friday afternoon advised The Herald that Texas Parks & Wildlife Dept. has confirmed financial and technical assistance for modernization of Wilson Ledbetter Park.

A study developed by Texas Parks & Wildlife Dept. is in the hands of a committee of Cameron Noon Lions, who are raising or have raised $3,000 going for $6,000, to be matched by City funds.

James U. Cross, executive director of Texas Parks & Wildlife, Austin, informed Rep. Kubiak that the 25-acre park modernization will be funded with state and federal funds totaling about 60 percent of a $25,000 first year budget.

The project as undertaken by the Cameron civic club, explained by James D. Camp at a noon club meeting, is estimated to cost by state planners at $88,000.

City of Cameron through Mayor E. A. Perrin and the Council will contribute labor and equipment toward renovation of the park, in south Cameron, to include recreation facilities, parking, modernization of the lake area and other outdoor equipment.

Rep. Kubiak also noted that Texas Parks & Wildlife Dept. is planning support for a 200-acre strip development along both sides of the Brazos River at Marlin for camping area, benches and similar improvements.

It will be the first major redevelopment of Wilson-Ledbetter Park since a number of stone scout and public buildings were built there about 35 years ago. The Cameron Public Swimming Pool was built in the 1940s.

The Rockdale representative took an interest in the project a couple of years ago when The Herald ran articles and pictures of the condition of W-L Lake, which is crackling dry in the drought years, and cluttered the year round.

Rep. Kubiak said he believed this project would require about three years or more to complete, but that it was first of its type done in the Central Texas area in decades.

Similar interest, but no funding has been made available in the Spanish mission sites at San Gabriel, which pre-date the American Revolution.

City of Cameron has a limited recreation or parks budget. Contributions of the City will match Lions Club funds and state and federal funds will match the total of the civic club and City.

Much of the work will be "in kind" as was much of the grading, earthmoving and development of the new Cameron Airpark, enlarged to Federal Aviation Agency standards a few years ago.

This is another in the sweeping development which Cameron enjoys. It couldn't happen to a nicer part of Texas.

Crowd Welcomes Barnes

A crowd of about 900 was on hand to welcome Ben Barnes' "Victory Special" when it pulled into the Santa Fe depot Thursday morning. Over half the crowd was under voting age drawn by star athletes on the train.

The Lt. Governor and his wife, Nancy, were officially welcomed by Mayor E. A. Perrin, who presented Mrs. Barnes with a pair of "Chappies", locally designed and made by THYA.

In a brief speech, Barnes called for local control of education, emphasis on solving rural problems and asked for support.

Three professional football players were on the train, and were nearly overwhelmed by school students when they got off the train and started giving autographs.

Barnes and his wife also got off the train to visit and shake hands in the crowd.

One highlight at the stop was a donkey, decorated in red, white, and blue paper flowers, brought to the station by supporters.

Another gift presented to the Barnes were pen and ink sketches drawn by local artist-sculptor James Brock. Mrs. Brock made the presentation.

Place Open On Co. School Board

Don G. Humble, member at large on the Milam County School Board has filed for re-election according to Max McClaren, county school superintendent.

John B. Henderson, Sr., trustee for Pct. 2 whose term of office expires this year, has indicated that he would not be a candidate for re-election.

Filing deadline is March 2.

Dress Code Dispute Goes On

GEORGETOWN

After hearing the results of polls recently taken among Georgetown parents and teachers, and the replies from nearby schools on the question of dress codes, Georgetown trustees appointed a committee to study the matter and make recommendations to the board at its next meeting. The committee will be composed of eight parents, four students, two school board members four teachers, and four administrators.

Sheriff Candidate Shot

HEARNE

Terry Fletcher of Franklin was listed in good condition at a local hospital after being shot in the upper right chest Monday. Fletcher was tacking up posters in his race for sheriff of Robertson County when two men drove up behind him. They got out of the car and one man pulled a pistol. Fletcher swung on him with a stapling machine but missed and the man shot him once.

Senior Citizens Center Planned

BELTON

A senior citizens center for Belton will eventually become a reality, if plans laid by a steering committee are continued. The center would be similar to the Harvest House in Temple, but using the facilities of the Belton Housing Authority.

Tie Plant Celebrates Safety

SOMERVILLE

Santa Fe Railway's Somerville tie plant celebrated completion of its second full year without a lost time injury at a barbecue in the Somerville Community Center. The plant force of 165 personnel has worked more than 650,000 man hours without a lost time injury.

Youth Injured By Golf Club

ROCKDALE

A 16-year-old Lexington High School junior, Alan Handrick, remains in serious condition at Brackenridge Hospital in Austin where he has twice undergone surgery for removal of blood clots on the brain. He was injured with a golf club when he and another student were practicing hitting golf balls Feb. 10.

Hospital Master Plan Presented

TEMPLE

A 10-year master plan for Scott and White Memorial Hospital and Clinic was presented at a called meeting of the board of trustees. Priority recommendation was to proceed with the building for an additional 120-160 bed facility to be connected to the present hospital. The proposed building will be constructed on the south side of the present facility.

'Hall Of The People' Hosts President Nixon

By James Pringle
Reuter Correspondent

PEKING

Television cameras took a world audience behind the scenes of one of China's inner sanctums, the great Hall of the People, during President Nixon's Peking visit.

Live satellite pictures showed busy Chinese girls in pigtails, wearing Mao badges on white tunics, waiting on American guests at a state dinner.

The dinner was held in a huge, vaulted banqueting hall the size of a football field, and a 50-piece orchestra of Chinese soldiers entertained the guests.

Viewers watched President Nixon, sitting at a circular table with Prime Minister Chou En-Lai, being introduced to Mao Tai, the fiery sorghum-based liquor which is an essential part of official banquets here.

Guests had a choice of chopsticks or western cutlery.

HALL OF THE PEOPLE

The great Hall of the People was begun during China's over-ambitious period of construction and heavy industrial development known as the great leap forward in 1958.

It stands on the west side of Peking's main square, the Tienanmen, facing the old, mysterious Forbidden City, which contains the former palaces of the Ming and Ching dynasties.

Though the Great Hall was built during a time of Stalinist influence in Chinese modern architecture, the 1,000 architects, teachers and students involved in the design were fortunately not affected by this stolid style.

The immense, pale yellow building, with its marble columns from remote Yunnan Province, is slightly taller than the palaces of the Forbidden City, but has managed to blend with Peking's landscape of low-roofed homes.

10 MONTHS TO BUILD

The Great Hall took only 10 months to build, from start to finish, and some 300,000 people assisted in the task. Its main features are the banqueting hall, seating 5,000, and an auditorium with a capacity for 10,000 people.

There are 29 lounges and reception rooms named after China's provinces, and national autonomous regimes, as well as the two major municipalities of Peking and Shanghai.

They are rich in Tibetan or Tientsin carpeting, and other treasures from China's regions.

Nixon's talks with Chou were held in one such room, and he was received by Chairman Mao-Tse-Tung in another.

A grand staircase leads to the banqueting hall, topped by a painting in traditional Chinese style called "Our Land So Fair" -- based on a poem by Chairman Mao.

The Chairman resides in the Western Imperial City, across the main Boulevard of Eternal Peace from the Great Hall.

It is rumored in Peking that an underground passageway links the leaderships offices and residences around Pei Hai Lake with the Great Hall.

BANQUETS FOLLOW PATTERN

State banquets follow a set pattern here which seldom varies. Guests, besides the state visitor and his entourage, normally include ambassadors and their wives and perhaps a handful of vanguard workers and soldiers, sitting in caps and fatigues.

Peking's resident foreign corps of about 25 correspondents is seated at three tables furthest from the top table.

The waitresses seem selected for their unobtrusive good looks -- though the Chinese would never admit to pandering to such bourgeois values -- and deftly replenish glasses of Mao Tai and sweet red Chinese wine as soon as they are sipped.

Chinese beer, lemonade or lao shan, a mineral water, are also served.

The orchestra plays traditional Chinese music or revolutionary themes from contemporary Peking opera.

DISHES GIVE CLUE

The number of dishes and their composition often gives a clue to the importance of the guest in Chinese eyes.

Sharks fin soup and sea-slugs -- alternately dried in the sun and soaked for seven days -- are special delicacies.

However, at a banquet held early this month for Pakistans President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, sea-slugs were not served.

Chinese officials explained that, while enjoyed as a great delicacy by the Chinese, they were not popular with some foreign guests.

After the speeches, Chou normally moves from table to table, toasting his guest. But observers note he seldom touches the Mao Tai in his glass.

The banquet normally concludes to the rousing strains of the song "The People of the World Shall Win."

Schedule Set For Schools Week

School Supt. D. R. Dodson has announced a new schedule for Public Schools Week which will be March 6-10.

This year open house will be held in Ben Milam, Ada Henderson and Cameron Junior High schools from 7 until 9 p.m. Tuesday, March 7.

An open house and the science fair will be held at Yoe High School on Thursday, March 9.

Folk Fete Launches Membership Drive

The finance committee of Folk Fete, Inc., under the leadership of Lake Stroup Jr., William Kelm and Simon Rangel, is launching a membership drive March 1 to enlarge participation in the newly formed non-profit organization.

Stock in Folk Fete, Inc. at $10 per share will be sold to business interests and individuals by the finance committee. Members will not be limited to one share of stock and are encouraged to purchase several shares.

"Folk Fete is a jewel in our community to be added to the face lifting of the downtown area through urban renewal," said Mrs. Perry Holder, Folk Fete co-chairman. "Plans are in the making for a much larger entertainment program with a beauty contest, domino tournament and a bigger and better fiddlers contest."

The six committees of the organization are working in various areas to extend the interest to neighboring communities. These activities need financing and this can be done by a healthy membership drive with all businesses and individuals becoming involved, Mrs. Holder said.

New Wildcat To Be Drilled

A new wildcat was scheduled Wednesday for Milam County in an area where there has been no recent drilling activity.

The wildcat, a shallow test, will be drilled by Bud L. Behring of Houston, a new operator in the Milam area. It will be his No. 1 Thomas R. Lutner. Location is on a 308 acre lease in Eli Williams Survey. This location places it near the western edge of Milano.

Behring's wildcat is permitted to 2,800 feet.

Child Care Center...

Another service long needed in Cameron, a child care center, has been set for a spring opening.

This program took about three years to jell, while communities with industry have had such a center for some time.

It will be located at Travis & Third and will care for children of working mothers.

The idea is to allow the time for mothers to become employed who need income, but who could not work without a child care center.

This is a supplement to employment in Cameron as well as a social service impossible to provide by any other means.

Sketch To Sketch...

The sketch of the downtown mall of February 24 is a different view with variations, but a basic rendition of a drawing of the open downtown run on these pages about six years ago.

The front page on which the sketch appeared, looking southwest from the Herald side of the Courthouse Square, is on microfilm. And urban renewal people may have a print copy.

Anyhow, it is the kind of past people like to haunt them. From artist's sketch -- a dream -- to an artist's sketch -- soon reality -- is what it means.

Most comment at the time was "that's nice", but so "is a free, round-trip to the moon."

Could Cameron support that? We did.

Two Chinese Interpreters Assigned For Nixon Visit

By James Pringle
Reuter Correspondent

PEKING

Among the busiest people in Peking this week could be two American - born Chinese.

They have been assigned by the Chinese the job of interpreting between the Chinese leaders and President Nixon during his historic week - long visit to China which started on Monday.

One of the interpreters is the attractive daughter of a former Chinese newspaper director in New York's Chinatown. The other is a graduate -- in chemistry -- from Harvard University, where U. S. presidential adviser Henry Kissinger was once a professor.

The woman, Miss Tang Wen-Sheng or Nacy Tang as she is known here to foreign diplomats, is 33, She lived in the United States until she was 11 years old.

An occasional American inflexion crept into her speech earlier this month when she translated for Chinese Prime Minister Chou En-Lai during a state banquet for visiting Pakistan President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto.

She is the daughter of Tang Ming-Chao, who was formerly director of the "Overseas Chinese Daily" in New York, but who came back to China with his daughter in 1949-- the year Chairman Mao Tse-Tung proclaimed the Peoples Republic of China.

Both she and her father were members of the Chinese team which attended the 26th session of the U. N. General Assembly in New York late last year, when China won admittance to the world asembly.

A Scandinavian diplomat's wife, who knows Miss Tang Well, said she would be "really pretty" if she wore something other than the high-button mao suits which are standard dress here.

"I'm sure she enjoyed going back to the U. S. recently," the diplomat's wife said, "though she's a dedicated revolutionary.

"She has a mind of her own, too. She likes to speak up about politics in her own right."

Miss Tang interpreted for Mao in December 1970 when he was interviewed by his old acquaintance, American writer Edgar Snow who died in Switzerland recently. It was to Snow that Mao revealed for the first time that he would be happy to talk with President Nixon.

China's other leading interpreter is Chi Chao-Chu. He was Chou En-Lai's interpreter during the prime minister's interview with visiting New York Times columnist James Reston last year. He was also present during Kissinger's talks in the Chinese capital last year which paved the way for the Nixon visit.

The urbane and professorial Chi is also believed to have been born in the United States. Aged 46, he has traveled widely abroad on official missions with the Chinese leaders.

In Peking, as is the case with most middle level officials, he rides to work on a bicycle.

It is no easy task translating for the precise and discerning Chinese prime minister. Chou understands English and is liable, according to diplomats, to interrupt his interpreter with an abrupt "No, I didn't say that."

As China ends its isolation, and more and more countries open embassies and missions here, the government faces an acute shortage of interpreters.

This is the main reason -- and not a question of shortage of accommodation -- behind a Chinese decision to restrict the size of the press party accompanying Nixon.

Colleges and universities in Shanghai and Peking are stepping up language study to meet the demand, both here and to staff new Chinese embassies abroad. The interpreters are trained in a wide variety of foreign tongues.

For instance, at a recent reception at the Finnish embassy the speech of a Chinese official present was translated into fluent Finnish by a young Chinese interpreter.

Both President and Mrs. Nixon were reported to be learning some Chinese for their visit. It is not clear, however, whether they are being tutored in the "pu tung hua" of Peoples China -- a simplified Mandarin -- or the more stylized speech of present-day Taiwan.

China has simplified the language, both in speech and in character writing, to banish illiteracy and create a unified speech to repalce China's plethora of mutually unintelligible dialects.

The Chinese Nationalists have condemned this as an attack on China's cultural heritage. The Peking government has said that widespread illiteracy which existed under the Nationalists has been eradicated through the use pf ug tung hua', literally "common language."

Mao, it is reported, has also been learnin g some English in preparation for the Nixon visit. He speaks Chinese in the thick accent of his native Human Province.

Diplomats here believe that, between the Nixons' Chinese and Mao's English, Miss Tang and Mr. Chi will be kept pretty busy during the presidential visit.

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

Bertram S. Brown, M.D., Director
National Institute of Mental Health

Mental depression is one of the most prevalent of all mental illness problems. Here we mean not just the "low feelings" that everyone has from time to time, but the kind of depression that should have treatment.

The gravity of the problem is emphasized by the estimate that between four and eight million Americans are in need of professional care for depressive illness at any given point in time.

Drugs are used in the treatment of depression, but the evaluation of how effective they are is far from as good as we would wish it to be.

A new, safe, fast, and reliable test to determine the real values of drugs in the treatment of depression, therefore, would be of great benefit to depression patients and their doctors.

Now a new study is getting underway, supported by the National Institute of Mental Health of the Health Services and Mental Health Administration, to evaluate a simple chemical test for assessing the potential efficacy of a number of drugs in the treatment of depressive iliness.

The study focuses on monitoring the pharmacological activity of "tricyclic" drugs, commonly used against depression. These include imipramine, amitriptyline, and others.

The director of the study is Dr. Seymour Rosenblatt of Mount Sinai School of Medicine, New York City. The test he is evaluating consists of administering a small tracer dose of a substance called norepinephrine and determining the relative distribution of two other substances, unoxidized amine and oxidized metabolites that result and that are found in a urine specimen collected 12 or 20 hours after administration of the norepinephrine.

Considered relatively simple, this test has been confined largely to research use, but it is easier and provides more precise data than the blood tests now used, according to Dr. Rosenblatt.

The research study, through bringing a better understanding of the pharmacological activity of the tricyclic antidepressants, could also lead, the scientist feels, to "our understanding of some of the biochemical aspects of depression."

Whistler Mountain Asks Development

By J. T. Clarke
Reuter Correspodent

VANCOUVER, B.C.

Japanese financiers are being asked to help develop a ski resort at Whistler Mountain, described by European experts as the best skiing area in the world.

Japan is running out of skiing room in its overcrowded islands and the Whistler developers believe there is a good chance they'll be willing to provide $2 million for a hotel.

About 2,400 skiers from Japan are expected to tour the slopes in Western Canada. Although they'll go mainly to the world - famed ski runs around Banff in the Canadian Rockies, some of them are expected to try the runs at Whistler, 70 miles north of Vancouver.

Whistler was Canada's choice for the 1976 Winter Olympic games. Denver, Colo., was selected instead and Whistler's chances of quick development, with the aid of millions of dollars offered by both the national government and the B. C. provincial government, went down the drain.

Whistler, located in Garabaldi Park, is closer to a big metropolitican center than any other comparable ski area in North America. But it is still a two-hour drive from Vancouver and needs a big hotel right in the skiing area.

Accommodation at present is limited to a 120-room hotel and three lodges each providing 16 to 20 rooms. What is needed is a new hotel with at least 300 rooms. says Franz Wilhelmsen, general manager of Garibaldi Lifts Ltd., which operates ski facilities on the mountain.

Skiing is the fastest growing sport in Canada and it's growing faster in western Canada than anywhere else, thanks to the successes of former world and Olympic ladies ski champion Nancy Greene, from the B.C. interior town of Rossland.

But Canadian hotelmen don't seem interested in developing Whistler, now that it's out of the running as an Olympic site. Wilhelmsen says almost every major hotel chain in the country has been approached but none has responded.

But the growing shortage of slopes in Japan may yet be Whistler's salvation.

Whistler is a natural alternative for the Japanese.

Miami Beach Police Are Training For Convention

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.

Police from the greater Miami area have started a pre-convention training program with a warning that "One mistake in human relations and you can lose a city."

The 18-weekend program is designed to prepare the police for the arrival of 50,000 persons for the July 9 Democratic national convention. And some of those arriving, said a party official, "may not be wishing us well."

Florida International University here will be in charge of the training under a federal grant of $395,424. University President Charles E. Perry said it will try to bring "the much needed understanding that is required between the policeman and the average, and not-so-average, citizen."

Paul Rundle, who will be chief of the government's Secret Service here for the convention, told officers meeting at Miami Beach Convention Hall: "If we make a mistake in a criminal investigation we lose a case. If you make one mistake in human relations you can lose a city."

Richard J. Murphy, democratic party convention manager and chairman of arrangements, said the party is determined not to have a repeat of the disruptive and violent demonstrations which marked the 1968 gathering in Chicago.

Terming the events there disastrous to the party, Murphy said the party "never recovered from that convention in time for the elections."

He said Miami Beach Police Chief Rocky Romerance's handling of the 1968 Republican convention here "had a lot to do with our decision to come here this year."

In addition to the delegates, alternates, officials and new media representatives, Murphy said "There will be many thousands of visitors coming here just for the fun of it and some demonstrating groups -- many of them not wishing us well."

Murphy said he wasn't assessing blame for the party's troubles at Chicago, but said there had been poor planning and over-reaction due to a lack of previous experience with the problem.

The training to be given police officials here, he said, "should go a long way toward alleviating another Chicago."

Rundle told the police officers the Secret Service would be on hand to guard the major candidates "but law and order at the convention complex and throughout the city is in your hands."

The Democrats, added Murphy, are coming to Miami Beach with three convention objectives: "First we want peace and tranquility in the city; second, an orderly convention by the delegates so that we may seriously deliberate the matters before us, and third, we want to permit every group and every person to express his views, including peaceful dissent, so that we may protect our civil liberties."

Tree Farms Dot Mississippi Land

BILOXI

Mississippi, which since 1955 has led all states in the number of tree farms, has recently added another laurel to its greenery crown.

The Mississippi Forestry Commission recently announced there are four million acres of land in the state devoted to tree farms.

The four millionth tree farm acre lies on the farm of 91-year-old Mrs. G. E. Patton near Water Valley. Mrs. Patton is the 4,539th tree farmer in the state.

The registered tree farms system, a nation - wide effort, started 30 years ago to promote continuous growing and harvesting of crops of trees.

It is sponsored by the American Forest Products Industries, Inc., Mississippi's forestry commission.

Privately - owned tree tracts of loblolly and longleaf pines, and gum and poplar are no novelty in Mississippi. Of the state's 17.2 million acres of forest lands, some 90 per cent of the total forest area is in industrial or private ownership.

Small woodland areas are considered an important part of most Mississippi farms.

One reason for tree farms is the heavy usage of forest products such as wood, pulpwood and paper.

Americans are estimated to use wood for paper at a rate of over 500 pounds per person yearly. Paper bags, paper towels, paper cups and milk cartons represent but a few samples of the 12,000 varieties of paper products produced in the United States.

Another ~~eason~~ for planting a tree farm is that it provides income with a minimum of attention. Many people call trees "the silent money makers."

They are a forgotten crop -- once planted, that requires little care and just time to grow

'All Joy Be Yours' Is Theme For World Day Of Prayer Service

Church Women United in Cameron will observe World Day of Prayer, the international celebration of faith and unity among Christian women, on Friday, March 3, at 1 p.m. in the Abiding Saviour Lutheran Church.

Rev. Bill Tomlin, pastor of All Saints Episcopal Church, will be guest speaker. The theme, to be used in similar gatherings in 169 countries, is "All Joy Be Yours."

Since the first small gatherings in the United States 85 years ago, the idea of united prayer by women around the world from sun to sun has increasingly captured the imagination of community groups. Today, World Day of Prayer can be described as the most important ecumenical occasion during the year. This celebration is the most widely observed activity of Church Women United, which is the ecumenical expression of Protestant, Orthodox and Roman Catholic women who wish to mobilize around common goals and channel their energies into effective action. The goal of Church Women United is to form a visible fellowship of believers in Christ, and move in every community and nation as instruments of reconciling love. There are 2,300 units of CWU in the United States.

The preparation for the celebration is as internationally far-reaching as the participation in it. Liaison officers from each national committee form a sponsoring International Committee. This committee, which meets every three or four years, met in Bangok in 1970.

Chairman of the International Committee is Gundrun Diestel of Germany, who also compiled the material which was developed into a service for the 1970 celebration. Women from at least ten eastern and western European countries contributed material. The service is adapted by the national committes to fit the individual needs of each country.

As the women of eastern and western Europe chose what petitions should be included in this year's world-wide prayers, they were aware of three problems affecting the whole world: the plight of displaced peoples, the strained relationships between the generations, and the unsettling effect of the technological revolution.

This year's theme, "All Joy Be Yours," is designed to raise the consciousness of the participant that the joy found in Christ is transcendent, permeating all of life no matter what conditions prevail. Just as the joyful reality of God's faithfulness and care can breakthrough the dismal or oppressive conditions that exist in the world, so Christ's coming as man can breakthrough the barrier between the sacred and the secular. "Breakthrough" was the theme of the National Ecumenical Assembly held by CWU in Wichita, Kansas, in April, 1971. The implications of God in Christ making a radical breakthrough in history were explored there and church women will continue to seek out what their faith compels them to do in the midst of the radical breakthrough in technology and social patterns.

The World Day of Prayer offering goes into a fund called Intercontinental Mission -- the process by which CWU participates in a ministry to people all over the world. The people and places to whom funds are granted include women and children in need of education and better nutrition, minority women in new careers, thirteen women's colleges in Asia and the Near East, international students, American Indians and Spanish-speaking people, migrants, refugees, people on vacation in National Parks, future church leaders interested in ecology, and women leaders in Africa and Latin America.

FASHION TALK - Nancy Barnes (right) wife of Gubernatiorial candidate Ben Barnes, and THYA Inc's Mary Jo Stroup, discuss the Chappies presented to Mrs. Barnes by local friends when the Barnes campaign train stopped in Cameron Thursday morning. The flower-decked donkey was also on hand to greet the train. The white Chappies (long pants fashion created by THYA, Inc.) were specially designed with a symbolic Democratic Donkey border.

Fashion Industry Believes Man Should 'Dress The Way He Feels'

COLLEGE STATION

A man should dress the way he feels.

"That's the only rule for men's clothing this spring and summer," said Roxanne Schnorr, clothing specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The specialist said that clothes express as much about a man as whatever he does while he wears them, so he should dress for whatever he feels like doing.

Textile manufacturers indicate the dressy suit for spring and summer is well-cut, single - breasted with wider lapels, skinnier at the waist and longer at the hips.

A man may choose from a world of suits -- safari, knicker, sweater and denim jean suits. He can wear them and feel comfortable wearing them.

"Shirts aren't stuffy any more," Miss Schnorr said.

"This year's shirt has good body definition. It may be worn anywhere with or without tie and jacket. Collars will still be long, but with a softer trend. Corners will be rounded."

Slacks introduce the excitingly new. Men will wear jeans for every occasion -- jeans in velvet, satin, tapestry, canvas and any non-traditional fabric. Other casual slacks will fit different occasions with different silhouettes -- boot pants, lederhosen, short shorts and knickers. Jodphurs, orginally designed for horseback riding, come on strong for casual wear.

Tailored slacks will be demanded in knits, according to Miss Schnorr. Flare and slim legs are the fashion cuts.

Youth takes on the rugged look of overalls, coveralls and western wear. Underwear - styled knit jersey shirts look well with the work clothes. Bib tops on swimwear and the new short shorts join the overall look.

With such individual choices, men's spring and summer fashions will express the way each individual man feels.

'Rebellion' Is Topic For Circles

Planting Roses For Spring To Late Fall Beauty Outdoors

With the growing popularity of roses grown in containers, a few simple directions for proper planting might be helpful.

Roses grown in containers can be planted anytime from frost-free spring throughout the summer.

1—Slit container and remove. Be careful not to disturb ball of soil around roots.

As is necessary with any other rose, plant in a sunny, well-drained location. Make the hole large enough so that the bud union will be one inch below the ground level and wide enough to accommodate the potted plant. Slit the container before removing the plant, being very careful not to disturb the ball of soil around the roots.

Carefully set the plant in the hole. Any roots that are coiled on the outside of the ball of earth should be straightened out.

Half fill the hole with soil, then water. When the water has disappeared, finish filling the hole around the plant ball with soil and pack. Leave a shallow depression for future watering when necessary, and give a final watering.

It is not necessary to mound soil around potted plants.

2—Carefully set plant in hole which should be deep enough that bud union will be one inch below the ground level.

3—Half fill hole with soil, then water.

4—When water has disappeared, finish filling hole with soil and pack. Leave depression around plant as in picture for watering when needed. When leveled the bud union will be slightly below ground level.

Make Over Roast Beef Leftovers for Good Second-Day Dinner

Meat leftovers are valued by the cook who views them as the makings of an easy yet satisfying meal. Putting cooked beef to good use is a matter of having an appropriate recipe on file, according to Reba Staggs, home economist of the National Live Stock and Meat Board. She suggests preparing Beef Encore when the refrigerator contains cooked beef.

Beef Encore

1 pound cooked sirloin tip or rump, cut in ¾ to 1-inch cubes

2 tablespoons spaghetti sauce mix from envelope

1 can (15 ounces) tomato sauce

½ cup water

2 packages (9 ounces each) frozen Italian green beans, cooked and drained

4 ounces noodles, cooked

¼ cup Parmesan cheese

Combine spaghetti sauce mix, tomato sauce and water in pan. Cook over low heat 5 minutes. Add beef cubes and cooked beans. Cook over low heat, stirring occasionally for 12 to 15 minutes or until beef is heated through. Serve on cooked noodles. Sprinkle Parmesan cheese over top. 4 to 5 servings.

Local Man Sentenced

On February 16, Judge W. C. Wallace in the District Court of Milam County revoked the three-year probated sentence given to Lonnie Brown of Cameron.

Brown was convicted of the crime of burglary on November 24, 1970 and placed on probation for a term of three years.

The evidence in the revocation hearing showed that Brown burglarized the Club Ebony, operated by Hubert Knight, in Cameron on July 12, 1971.

Lonnie Brown was sentenced on Wednesday, Feb. 23 and was transferred to the Department of Corrections at Huntsville.

Anderle's Means Service, Quality Materials

Anderle Lumber Company of Cameron is the first step for professional builders and 'do-it-yourselfers' alike. The reason is a combination of high quality building materials, wide selection and courteous, efficient service.

"We feel that our 24 years of proven service speaks for itself," said Anton Anderle, owner of the local lumber company. "Our steady growth over the past 24 years is proof of our reliability, service and quality materials."

Individuals planning to build or remodel their home can select floor coverings, wall coverings, ceiling materials, paint, siding, formica and plumbing fixtures in the spacious and well lighted Anderle Lumber Company display room.

Paneling is the 'hot item' for remodeling and new construction and Anderle Lumber Company offers a wide selection from which to choose.

"Our wall paneling ranges in price from $3 to $21 a sheet," Anderle said, "and we can offer a selection of wood tones that will fit any decorating need."

Also of interest to the color conscious decorator is the large selection of wood tones that will fit any decorating need.

Also of interest to the color conscious decorator is excellent selection of ornamental iron porch posts and railings and precast cement steps.

For exterior home appearance, Anderle's has an the large selection of top quality Sherwin Williams paints and Old Masters antiquing and wood graining products.

Anderle's also offers both bank financing and Title 1 financing.

1040 U.S. Individual ... Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on Federal tax matters is provided by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q - I sold my home last December at a $5,000 profit. Do I have to report this as income when I file my 1971 return?

A - Not if, within one year before or after the sale, you buy and occupy another residence that costs as much or more than the sales price of the old residence. Additional time is allowed if you construct the new residence or you were on active duty in the U.S. Armed Forces. In such a case, the tax is postponed, not forgiven. Any gain not taxed in the year you sell your old residence is subtracted from the cost of the new residence giving you a lower basis to be used in the event of a later disposition. If you sell the new residence in a later year, and again replace it, under similar circumstances, any tax on the gain you realize may continue to be postponed.

Q - I won a new car last year in a radio contest. Do I have to pay tax on this prize?

A - Yes. Prizes and awards you receive in goods or services must be included in income at their fair market value.

Q - I paid my daughter's medical insurance premiums last year. Do I include these premiums in the amount of support I furnished her when figuring out whether or not I can claim her as a dependent?

A - Yes. You may include as an item of support medical insurance premiums you paid, as well as other expenditures you made for her medical and dental care. However, the benefits received from medical insurance policies are not included in support.

Q - After four years of attending college full-time and working part-time to help pay for it, I graduated last year and took a full-time job. Can I use income averaging to reduce my tax?

A - Before you can consider income averaging, a basic requirement is that you must have furnished 50 percent or more of your own support during each of the four years prior to 1971. IRS Publication 506, "Computing Your Tax Under the Income Averaging Method," explains all the details of income averaging. It's available free at your local IRS office.

Q - I sued to recover damages for injuries I incurred in an auto accident. I settled for $7,500 before we ever got to trial. Is the $7,500 tax free?

A - Yes if it is compensation for personal injury or illness. Such compensation is not taxable, whether you receive it after trial or through settlement.

Q - Where can I get a copy of the IRS booklet, "Your Federal Income Tax"?

A - You can buy it for 75 cents at larger Postal Service stations, at larger IRS offices, at branch bookstores of the U. S. Government Printing Office throughout the country, or by mail from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washing-Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402.

Q - Are there any limits on how much you can deduct as a charitable contribution?

A - Yes. In general, contributions to most charities, such as churches, educational organizations, hospitals, etc., may be deducted up to 50 percent of your adjusted gross income. However, contributions to certain private non-operating foundations, veterans organizations, fraternal societies, and cemetery organizations are limited to 20 percent of adjusted gross income. The organization itself can tell you which of the two categories it falls into.

There are also certain limitations on contributions of property, such as stock. For details, see IRS Publication 526, "Income Tax Deduction for Contributions," available free from your IRS office.

Q - I had two jobs last year and I think my employer withheld too much for Social Security. How can I get this back?

A - If you worked for two or more employers during 1971 and received more than $7,800 of wages subject to Social Security tax, you are entitled to claim the excess Social Security tax withheld as a credit against you income tax. Check your tax returns instructions for information on how to compute the credit.

Land of opportunity

The Texas Power & Light Company service area is 47,000 square miles big. It's home to almost two million people . . . and a land of opportunity.

It is an excellent area for new industry—and as industry comes so do new jobs, new payroll dollars and new tax dollars for community facilities and services. The area's agriculturists work diligently to develop its many agri-business opportunities by improving farming, livestock production and marketing. Towns and communities in the TP&L service area are also involved in self-improvement programs that create opportunities for better living.

TP&L is happy to be working side by side with people of its service area—community leaders, businesses, educational institutions and other concerned groups—to develop the potential of this region to its maximum.

Shortstopping Ducks, Geese Promised Federal Action

AUSTIN

Two problems in waterfowl management -- the "short-stopping" of ducks and geese at mid-continent, and the setting of Texas waterfowling seasons--have been promised "new policy" thinking at the federal level.

Migratory birds will be encouraged to continue south and Texas hunters may also be handed seasons starting later in 1972 but ending 10 days to two weeks later in 1973, said Texas Parks and Wildlife Executive Director James U. Cross.

Cross said that he was pledged the new courses of action on the controversial issues during a Washington D. C. meeting last week with Nathaniel P. Reed, Assistant Secretary of the Interior for Fish and Wildlife and Parks.

Cross reported, "New ideas will be used to determine the answers. In the past, decisions of migratory waterfowl management have been made on the basis of what was done the year before. Mr. Reed has promised to look at the situation, not a precedence."

The new policy, Cross explained, willinsure that migratory birds do not lose those instincts to continue south to the traditional Louisiana and Texas Gulf Coast wintering grounds. The Parks and Wildlife head said that he and Reed discussed flyway management at the Squaw Creek, Swan Lake and DeSoto National Wildlife Refuges, where thousands of geese were observed last December during the middle of the Texas waterfowl hunting season.

Cross, who was joined in the talks by Parks and Wildlife Department waterfowl biologist Charles D. Stutzenbaker, added, "We asked that they reduce these populations, by reducing the water and the crops, and requested that federal funds not be used for new refuges along the Central Flyway."

Last year, both duck and goose hunting season opened on Nov. 3, closing on Jan. 11 and Jan. 16, respectively.

"We may get an expanded federal frame work," Cross stated, "depending on the number of birds available, which would allow us to set the maximum season 10 days to two weeks later." He explained that the 1972 opening date could possibly be around Nov. 25, with closing of goose season "around Jan. 25 or so, or as late as Feb. 1."

Meetings of first the Central Flyway Council and, later, the National Flyway Council which represents all states as well as hunter and conservation groups, will determine recommendations for hunting laws which the U. S. Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife (Interior Dept.) will use to issue outside opening and closing dates for states' migratory bird seasons.

3 Million Veterans Train Under GI Bill

Nearly three million veterans and servicemen trained under the GI Bill since the bill went into effect in June 1966, a Veterans Administration publication reveals.

The January issue of the information bulletin summarizes VA educational activities from Fiscal Year 1967 through November 1971.

Jack Coker, Director of the VA Regional Office in Waco, said the bulletin indicates 104,460 Texas veterans have trained in the agency's programs out of a total of 270,000 eligible veterans in the state.

Coker noted that nearly 1.2 million veterans were enrolled in VA educational programs around the country last November. Of that number, 67,955 took their training in Texas.

The Washington meeting Feb. 9 was arranged through the assistance of John Parker of Lufkin, former state chairman for Ducks unlimited and presently a national trustee of that group which fosters perpetuation of North American migratory waterfowl. Parker has also been instrumental in other means of focusing attention on waterfowl problems in Texas.

Local Pup Wins 1st In Field Trial

Last weekend, Cen-Tex Hunting and Fishing Co., at Rogers, held its second annual field dog trials. Entries were received from Bryan, Fort Worth, Austin, Arlington, Granbury, Cameron, McGregor, Waco, Killeen, Belton and Temple.

The puppy class, limited to dogs 18 months and younger were held Saturday.

Spot, a nine month old pup owned by James Hudson and B. Dusek of Cameron walked away with first place. Second place went to D. S. Wilson of Fort Worth with his English setter and third place was taken by a dog from Waco owned by Brad Harris.

Sunday brought the open class and returning to capture first place was the Hudson-Dusek-Holcombe dog from Cameron. Second place went to Duschess owned by Dale Smiley and R. N. Garner of Bryan. Brazos Jack, another Bryan dog owned by Wallace T. Cowart was awarded third place.

A Charles Daly over and under shotgun was awarded to the owners of the top dog in the open class. Other winners received shotgun shells and dog food along with trophies.

Economic Development Clinic Set

An Economic Development Clinic will be held in Cameron on March 7 at the Cameron Community Center from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., according to State Representative Dan Kubiak. E. H. Sheffield, industrial development consultant from the Texas Industrial Commission will direct the clinic.

Among those leading discussions during the day will be Marvin Hagemeier of the Economic Development Administration, Eugene Black of the Small Business Administration, Leo Garrett of Housing and Urban Development, L. D. Smith of Farmers Home Administration, Carson Hoge of Brazos River Authority, Roy Huffman of Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, Richard Pierce of the Travel and Information Division of the Texas Highway Department and Fritz Lanhorn of Texas Department of Community Affairs.

Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. and the registration fee will include a noon lunch. This is an open meeting and everyone is invited to attend.

The clinic is designed to explain state and federal funds that are available to communities and individuals in helping develop the rural areas.

THE INFORMED CONSUMER

BY CRAWFORD C. MARTIN
Attorney General of Texas

Let's assume that you have decided to fix up your home, and that you are planning on having repairs made or new additions. You should be particularly cautious about selecting the man for the job. Take some time in determining just who you want to do the work to avoid disappointment, and in some cases, actual deceptive practices which can be costly.

It would be well to contact reputable contractors in your area, getting estimates for the work you want done. Compare the prices. To help you arrive at your decision, ask the contractors or workmen to give you the names of homeowners for whom they have worked previously and call them to inquire about the quality of the work.

When pricing home improvements, do not be carried away by advertising which states a specific price for a specific job on your home, sight unseen, with a free television set thrown in as a bonus. It is always best to have someone actually come to your home to examine it in order to determine what the cost will be.

Once you have chosen the man for the job, he and you should have a written contract setting forth in detail the cost of the work to be performed and the work to be done. The total cost should include the price of materials and labor.

Unfortunately, the home improvement area is a fertile field for the unscrupulous fly-by-nighters. For that reason it is usually best to have established reputable local contractors, tree surgeons, exterminators, roof repairmen, etc., to do the work for you.

One of the most insidious and reprehensible deceptive practices in this area is the "free termite examination" which is used merely as a "toe-in-the-door" to get additional work.

This ploy has financially harmed many of our elderly citizens who live alone. Usually someone for the "x" company telephones the unsuspecting senior citizen telling him that the company's workmen and trucks are working in the neighborhood and offering a free termite inspection. Then a workman arrives on the scene, makes an "inspection" under the house, in some instances finding termites, in other, not; but always finding the need for repairs to be done. The consumers are warned that the house is about to fall in, that the floors need leveling, that sills and blocks are needed, that the wiring is dangerous, and that additional repairs are essential. Of course, the workmen are available to do the job. Some of the individuals are frightened about the condition of their homes and accept the company's low estimate, allowing the workmen to proceed.

Verry little work, is any, is actually performed around and under the house, but the homeowner gets a bill for the authorized work plus the unauthorized work. It is not unusual for the bill to be three times more than the estimate. It amounts to an exhorbitant price for shoddy work. The presentation of the bill is in person, and the workmen prefer being paid on the spot by check. In some instances where the workmen allegedly find termites, the consumer is charged for a spraying job with a solution that is ineffective to rid the house of the pests.

Don't pay for work in advance. Often the homeowner is requested to pay one-half of the agreed price so the contractor can "purchase the necessary materials." After the money is paid, the repairman never shows up. Never pay in advance for home repairs unless you know the person with whom you are dealing.

When you decide to improve your home, make sure you know something about the background of the company. Do not allow yourself to be pressured or frightened into having work done by an outfit that contacts you. If you are told your house is hazardous to live in, have another repairman look at it before authorizing work to be done. Be sure that the repairs are needed.

If you have been a victim of a scheme such as described above, notify Attorney General Crawford C. Martin, P. O. Box 12548, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711.

Basic electricity and electronics will include theories of alternating and direct current and their application to fundamental principles of electronics. The course is needed by air conditioning and refrigeration mechanics, sewing machine mechanics, vending machine mechanics, and electronics mechanics. It is a 15-week course.

United Parcel Service To Expand Throughout Texas

DALLAS

United Parcel Service, a national delivery company, has announced that it will expand its interstate service throughout Texas linking the entire state with a major portion of the country.

The extension of service will link Texas shippers and receivers to a package delivery network covering 34 other states, plus the District of Columbia. This package service area encompasses all states east of the Mississippi River, the entire states of Minnesota, Iowa, Louisiana, North Dakota and South Dakota, and parts of three states: Arkansas, with the exception of a narrow strip along the northwestern and western borders of the state, northern Nebraska and eastern Missouri.

United Parcel Service has been providing its service within the commercial zones of Dallas-Ft. Worth since September, 1970; in the Houston commercial zone since April, 1971, and on an interstate basis for eastern Texas shippers since last October. The company handles packages that weigh up to 50 pounds and have a maximum combines length and girth of 108 inches.

The new delivery service is being instituted as a result of a grant of authority from the Interstate Commerce Commission. United Parcel Service has applications pending for additional operating authority which, if granted and fully implemented, would permit Texas shippers to reach states to the west as well.

SINCE1907

United Parcel Service has been in the package delivery business since 1907 and presently offers its service in 40 entire states and parts of six others. The company provides pickup, transportation and delivery of packages at rates comparable to those for uninsured parcel post.

In order to provide this expanded service to any address in Texas, United Parcel Service will have approximately 900 employees and 400 vehicles operating from its facilities located in Abilene, Amarillo, Austin, Beaumont, Bryan, Corpus Christi, Dallas, Del Rio, El Paso, Ft. Worth, Harlingen, Houston, Laredo, Lubbock, Lufkin, Odessa, San Angelo, San Antonio, Sulphur Springs, Texas City, Tyler, Victoria, Waco and Wichita Falls.

SERVICE FEATURES

United Parcel Service provides shippers and their receivers with a number of unique service features, including:

A driver calls at a shipper's place of business each day to pick up packages. For a small weekly service charge he appears automatically without regard to the size of the shipper's business or the volume of packages that can be expected from the account.

Deliveries are made directly to the premises of the consignee whether he is located on the upper floor of an office building or at street level, or whether he is within a city or in a rural area away from any city or community.

If for any reason a delivery cannot be completed on the first call, the driver will make a second, and if necessary, a third attempt at delivery without extra charge. If the package still cannot be delivered, or if it is refused by the receiver, it will be returned to the shipper, also without additional charge.

All packages sent via United Parcel Service are protected automatically for up to $100 against loss or damage without extra charge. Additional protection can be purchased at a nominal cost.

Signatures are obtained for each package delivered and specially designed records will permit prompt answering of queries about delivery of package.

United Parcel Service provides an address search service to minimize delivery delays for incorrectly addressed parcels, and also offers a C.O.D. service.

All drivers are neatly uniformed and delivery vehicles are maintained at high levels of appearance. It is company policy to wash or celan each vehicle daily and to repaint vehicles at regular intervals.
